1: PRACTICAL– Choose ONE of the following tasks

Make an Animals and their Habitats game

Invent a game for 2 or more people that will involve asking and answering questions about animals and how they are suited to their habitats.

Take a look at these quiz questions for ideas.

Animal facts guide:

Think about:

Will it be a classical board game like Snakes & Ladders? Or your own design?

Will you have cards with questions or collect information to complete a set of animals that are suited to a particular habitat?

Make a Shoebox Habitat

If you want, you can choose to make one of these with a partner who is in YOUR CLASS.

First, think of which habitat you would like to make – what materials could you use? What colours?

Will you include any animals, if so, which ones? What plant life will you include?

Some ideas to get you thinking:

2.CREATIVE WRITING– Choose ONE of the following tasks:

Please make sure this is written or stuck in your homework book.

Jane Goodall and David Attenborough are both scientists well-known for their work studying animal behaviour.

But do you know what their main achievements were? What their early lives were like and exactly what they do?

Choose either Jane or David and do some research, then present your research as either:

- An interview in a magazine (you could imagine interviewing your chosen scientist, what questions would you ask, and what might they reply? )
- A non-chronological report about them, their early life, career and accomplishment.

Think about how you will present all your research. How will you lay it out on the page? Will you use headings and subheadings? How will you make it eye-catching?
